

Punctuation Worksheet | Using Commas to Join Clauses

When you have two complete sentences, you can use a comma and a joining word like "and," "but," "or," or "so" to connect them. For example, instead of saying, "We went shopping. Then we went to the pool," you can say, "We went shopping, and then we went to the pool."

Instructions: Add a comma and a conjunction (connecting word) to join the sentences.

1. The robot built a spaceship. He took off into space.

2. Maya wanted to draw a picture. She couldn't find her pencil.

3. Should we go to the park? Should we stay home instead?

4. The rabbit found a carrot. The squirrel found an acorn.
